Education Graduate Programs

Complete your Montessori credential, then earn your Master's Degree *online with UT Martin's Education Graduate Programs!

Children are the ultimate winners in a new partnership allowing UT Martin Education Graduate students to earn a Montessori teaching credential that can be applied toward a Master of Science degree in education.

Based on the teachings of Dr. Maria Montessori, this specialized curricular approach focuses on self-directed learning. Students can earn the Montessori teaching credential through the Montessori Educational Institute of North America (MEINA) teacher education program at their Instructional Center in Jackson, Tennessee, and then take six online core courses to complete a master's degree in education.

Adult learners who take the elementary course can matriculate 18 hours towards a Master of Science in Education degree after successfully completing all requirements.

Students who have recently completed Montessori credentials can submit their portfolio for admission consideration.

Led by expert, student-centered faculty, the 100% online courses offered by Education Graduate Programs include:

Foundation Courses:

- Educational Statistics
- Research in Education
- Multicultural Issues in Education and Counseling
- Models of Instruction, Curriculum Development and Advanced Teaching Strategies

Application Courses:

- Teaching with Technology
- Master Research Project

MEINA is accredited by M.A.C.T.E., is affiliated with AMS, recognized by the Tennessee Higher Education Commission and is an approved educational provider and facility.
