Merwin to provide insight into Abraham Lincoln’s mind

Dr. Michelle Marks Merwin, associate professor of psychology and recipient of the UT Martin 2009 Cunningham Award, will present “Lincoln’s Destiny and Will: The Writings of Rollo May Visible in the Life of the Great Emancipator” at 7:30 p.m., March 4, in Watkins Auditorium.

“We welcome Dr. Merwin, an accomplished psychologist, who will provide some insight into the mind of that most fascinating of presidents, Abraham Lincoln, most notably the question of whether Lincoln suffered from depression and how his sufferings may have contributed to his work in the presidency,” said Dr. Dan McDonough, Honors Program director.

Merwin received bachelor’s and master’s degrees in psychology from the University of Colorado at Colorado Springs and a doctorate in clinical psychology from Michigan State University. She served as a National Institute of Health Research Post-doctoral Fellow at the University of Michigan before joining the UT Martin faculty in 1999.

In addition to her academic pursuits, Merwin has experience working in the psychological field, having served as a neu-ropsychological psychometrician in Colorado Springs and as a cognitive remediation therapist in both Colorado Springs and in East Lansing, Mich. She is
