• Dr. Dawn Wilkins, assistant professor of biology, has published an article, "Effect of Time and Barred Owl Playback on Winter Detection of Woodpeckers in East-Central Mississippi," in the "Southeastern Naturalist."

• Jason Stout, assistant professor of art, recently was involved in two art exhibitions in San Antonio, Texas. The first was a solo show of his work at REM Gallery. The show was titled "The Injured Facade" and consisted of drawings and paintings based on a conceptualized war. The second show was a fundraiser for i2i Gallery called "Insanely Sick." The gallery is in the process of becoming a non-profit and is owned and operated by a friend of Stout's from graduate school and fellow artist, Judith Cottrell. One of Stout's drawings was the featured piece in the "San Antonio Current" advertising for the show. Stout is scheduled to show at i2i later next year with two other political artists in San Antonio, Alex Rubio and Regis Shepard. Both of Stout's

Kennedy is academic speaker

Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David M. Kennedy will speak at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 2, in Watkins Auditorium of Boling University Center. His visit will be co-sponsored by UT Martin Honors Programs, the Vertical Immersion Project and the Department of History and Philosophy. The presentation is free and open to the public.

"Tom Brokaw immortalized the generation which was raised in the Depression and fought the Second World War as the 'Greatest Generation,'" said Dr. Dan McDonough, honors programs director. "In his recent Pulitzer Prize-winning book, 'Freedom From Fear: The American People in Depression and War, 1929-1945,' David Kennedy explains how these men and women surmounted the catastrophic events they faced to triumph over fear and earn their place as the 'greatest generation'."

A native of Seattle, Kennedy received his bachelor of arts degree from Stanford University and a master of arts degree and doctorate from Yale University. He has taught at Stanford University since 1967 and is cur-

Online courses varied

The Office of Extended Campus and Continuing Education (ECCE), in partnership with Gatlin Education Services (GES), offers online open enrollment programs designed to provide the skills necessary to acquire professional-level positions for many in-demand occupations.

The programs are designed by a team of professionals from each respective field, who work to provide class participants with an effective Web-based learning experience. Instructors/mentors are actively involved in participants' online learning experience. They respond to questions or concerns and encourage and motivate students to succeed.

Each program includes a set of lessons and evaluations; grades are a combination of the instructor/mentor's evaluation of a student's work and computer-graded tests.

Certificate programs are available in the healthcare field: dental assistant, medical coding, pharmacy technician, veterinary assistant and others. In the field of business, courses include: certified bookkeeper, certified financial planner, certified global business professionals, paralegal, lean mastery, Six Sigma Blackbelt, Six Sigma Greenbelt and more. Other fields include the following: construction/automotive technology, Internet, design and technical programs, networking and CompTIA™ certification programs, Microsoft certification training programs and video game design and development programs.

To view a complete list of ECCE online, non-degree programs and program descriptions, visit <http://www.utm.edu/departments/ecce/onlinecourses.php> or call ECCE at 7082.

La Dolce Vita in store for travelers

Visit Roman ruins, admire Renaissance art in Florence and explore the canals of Venice. All this is included in a travel-study program planned from March 7-19.

This travel-study program will explore Italian popes, painters, polenta, paramours, poets, political puerility and potentates. Participants will examine Italy's history, culture and cuisine. They will tour San Marino, the third smallest state in Europe (after the Holy See and Monaco), which claims to be the world's oldest republic.

For information, contact Stan Sieber, professor of history and coordinator of travel studies, at ext. 7467, or the Center for Global Studies and International Education, at ext. 1023.

rently the Donald J. McLachlan Professor of History. In addition to his service at Stanford, Kennedy has held visiting professorships at several prominent universities, including the University of Florence and Oxford University.

His numerous books and articles have been honored with several important awards. His first book, "Birth Control in America: The Career of Margaret Sanger," received the Bancroft Prize in 1971, while "Over Here: The First World War and American Society" (1980) was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize. His most prominent book, "Freedom From Fear: The American People in Depression and War, 1929-1945" (1999), received both the Pulitzer and Francis Parkman Prizes.

With a style that beautifully and masterfully interweaves the political, social, economic and cultural forces of the time, Kennedy has written some of the best histories of the American people during the 20th century and the period of the world wars.

For more information, contact McDonough at ext. 7436.

Next Lunch Bunch is slated for Nov. 16
