Knowing how to address students with different learning styles, different personalities and students who have all had different experiences in life is quite a tall order for teachers. Join this presenter/author to find out how writing in the content areas can make differentiation more manageable!

Cheryl Sigmon

Cheryl was a classroom teacher for eleven years, teaching all ages of students in classroom settings, labs, and clinics. She also worked for nine years as a language arts consultant for the South Carolina Department of Education. She is currently a freelance consultant and presenter on topics in education.
