K-Kids make pancake posters: Last Thursday at K-Kids, Anita and Sara led students in making poster advertising the pancake breakfast, Feb. 24. Evidently the boys were big on incorporating dinosaurs in their artwork. The girls may have been a little more traditional All had a great time.

A week of wildlife superlatives! Eric Pelren addressed Kiwanis last week and told us of his selections of “wildlife superlatives” — some positive, some negative, ranging from cutest to fiercest. He noted that Tennessee is one of the most diverse states in terms of wildlife, but we need to aware that population growth is encroaching on wildlife habitat. Some choices:

- |               |                       |
|---------------|-----------------------|
| Largest:      | Elk                   |
| Smallest bird | Humminbird            |
| Most striking | Red headed woodpecker |
| Most colorful | Wood Duck             |
| Most aromatic | Spotted Skunk         |
| Fastest       | Peregrine Falcon      |
| Ugliest       | Hellbender Salamander |
| Most mythical | Black Panther         |
| Fiercest      | Weasel                |
| Cutest        | Northern Saw-whet Owl |

Pictured to the right (upper) is the juvenile version of the Northern Saw-whet Owl. Below it is the adult. This fellow would make David Pitts proud! According to the Cornell Lab of Ornithology, the Northern Saw-whet Owl is practically bursting with attitude. Where mice and other small mammals are concerned this fierce, silent owl is anything but cute.
