A box lunch will be provided by Sodexho. If you have not reserved a box lunch (either at last week's meeting or by email), you may have to provide your own lunch.

Kiwanis One Day The fall book walk was a success," said Jenny Claiborne, director of children's and youth services at C. E. Weldon Library. She said that approximately 30 children completed the book walk on Saturday, Oct. 29 at the Harrison Road Disc Golf Park and that parents, friends, and more than a dozen volunteers also enjoyed the beautiful day.

After registering and receiving a map and instruction sheet, groups of children and parents walked around the park to read signs with laminated copies of pages from the featured book, "The Little Old Lady Who Was Not Afraid of Anything," a popular seasonal story.

cutouts of shoes, pants, a shirt, hat, gloves, and a pumpkin, all items associated with this story about a brave woman who comes up with a creative solution to a problem. At the last table on the walk, children glued together the pieces collected from the activity tables in order to complete a scarecrow.

Children then returned to the registration table for refreshments, a bag of treats, and several free books. Included in the "goody" bag were cookies, a pen, a pencil, soap bubbles, candy, four bookmarks (one with the phrase "dig into reading" showed a delightful picture of a porcupine with glasses reading in a comfortable woodsy room), and important safety reminders about practicing home fire escape plans—crawling low below the smoke—in case of an emergency.

Kiwanis volunteers and friends included Otha Britton, Jim and Anna Clark, Ann Gathers, Sara Sieber, and Linda Ramsey.

Westview Key Club volunteers were Ann Margaret Carithers, Taylor Hoffman, Wyatt Jones, Jordan Lybrook, and Johana Romero. Sadie Claiborne a local K-Kids member and her brother Larsen also helped.

As a "Kiwanis One Day" activity, (a time when members of the Kiwanis family volunteer for a community project), everyone involved—children, parents, friends, and volunteers—had a great time!
